BIG NAVY BILL PASSES SENATE

Appropriation Made for 4 Dreadnaughts and 62 Other Craft—It Carries $115,836,843—Vote 71 to 8—Two Democrats Voted Against the Measure.

Washington, July 21.—The naval appropriation bill, with a three year building program, including the immediate construction of four dreadnaughts, four great battle cruisers, and fifty-eight other craft, passed the Senate today by a vote of 71 to 8. It carries $115,836,843, or $45,857,588 more than the total as the measure passed the House.

Many proposals to curtail the enormous building increases written into the measure by the Senate Naval Committee were defeated overwhelmingly and as soon as final passage was announced the Senate voted to insist on its amendment and send the bill at once to conference. The House is expected to insist on its building program and a long struggle is in prospect before agreement is reached.

Two Democrats Against It
Two Democrats, Senators Thomas and Vandaman, and six Republicans, Senators Platt, Curtis, Gronna, La Follette, Norris and Works, voted against the bill, which has had the support of leaders of both parties during the week of debate that preceded its passage.

A seven-four speech by Senator La Follette against the measure and a conflict between Senators Reed and Oliver over the proposal to print as a public document the Bethlehem Steel Company's arguments against a government armor plan delayed the final vote. The Bethlehem arguments were ordered printed by unanimous consent during Senator Reed's absence from the Senate chamber. On his return he vainly sought reconsideration, charging that Senator Oliver as an owner of steel stock has voted money into his own pocket by supporting the bill.

Conferees on Bill Appointed
Senators Tillman, Swanson and

Lodge were appointed conferees on the bill. The House conferees will be chosen Tuesday, and daily sessions probably will be held thereafter by the conferees committee. Construction of 157 vessels, including sixteen capital fighting ships, within three years at an estimated cost of $688,180,576, is contemplated in the Senate program the largest ever proposed in Congress. Of the total appropriation in the bill, $110,736,160 is for the first year's building expenditures.

As it passed the House, the measure made no provision for a continuing building program and authorized only seventy-two ships, including five battle cruisers and no dreadnaughts.

EMMER IS THERE

Say the Cincinnati Sport Writers—Former Third Baseman of Local Team Will Probably Become a Regular on Red Team

The following is what two of the Cincinnati papers said about Frank Emmer, who was with the Burley Cubs last summer, and who broke in to two big games Thursday afternoon:

"Emmer made a big hit at the short field. Though he is a third-baseman by profession, he handled all kinds of ground balls perfectly and his throwing was superb. The kid was a little rattled at first, but he soon cooled down and his work in the second game was high-class. Emmer has been with the Reds since the opening of the season, but has never been started in a game and has appeared only once or twice as substitute hitter or runner. Captain Wingo sent him to shortstop in the fourth inning of the first game, relieving Fisher. The kid put fine ball all the afternoon. He was a little nervous about getting his throws away and made one low hurl on an easy chance, but he has a very good arm and his hand work on ground balls was superb. He struck out three times in the second game, but got a hit at just the right time. In the first game he hit the hardest ball that was knocked off Alexander, a long fly to left that Whitted just managed to get under after a hard run. Emmer is not a flash. The players who have seen him in practice are confident that he will make good and hold down a regular job on the club. It was a ten-strike for Captain Wingo to give the kid a chance to show his ability.—Enquirer.

Matty doesn't know it, except by hearsay, but Buck Herzog's successor as shortstop of the Reds was found Thursday while Buck was getting ready to leave the Reds and join the Giants. Shortly after the first game had started Bob Fisher, who had been playing short under the makeshift arrangement Herzog had in force the last two weeks, found his arm was too sore for him to make the throw from short to first.

Frank Emmer, kid of the team, was put at short by Acting Manager Wingo and the way Frank played was a sight for sore eyes. He never played short before in his life, but he handled the most difficult chances Thursday like a veteran shortstop, coming in or laying back so as to get the balls on the right hope every time.

And my, how that boy can throw! That right arm of his is a regular rifle. Let him play a few more games to get self confidence and Frank won't have to step out for any shortstop the Reds can lay hands on at this time. He may not hit much for awhile, but when he does hit the ball he gives it a dandy ride.

Wingo reports Emmer has been practicing batting left handed and shows more promise as a southpaw batter than he does as a right handed club swinger.—The Post.

INQUIRY STARTED INTO BLACK LIST

State Department Directs Inquiry of British Embassy and Page—Concerns Complaint—Action Is Discussed at Cabinet Meeting and Inquiries Is Expressed.

Washington, July 21.—Inquiry as to why certain business concerns in the United States have been placed on a blacklist under Great Britain's "trading with the enemy act" were directed to the British Government by the State Department today through both the British embassy here and Ambassador Page at London.

Information is sought specifically regarding a number of firms, the names of which have not been made public by the department. There is no discussion of principle in the inquiry, that matter being left for attention, after the American government is fully informed on the facts.

A request for general information concerning the application of the act to firms in the United States already had been made informally to the British embassy as a preliminary step to formal representations. Today's action was based upon complaints from concerns about which the department inquired.

The action of Great Britain in placing nearly 100 firms and corporations in this country on the so-called blacklist was discussed today at the cabinet meeting. Indication was expressed, but it was agreed that no course of action could be determined upon until the State Department had completed its investigation.

Nationwide Protest Made
New York, July 21.—A nationwide protest was made today by the American the United States to the significance of the British government's action in blacklisting American firms was begun here today at a conference of about fifty members of firms which appear on the list.

Leopold Zimmerman head of the banking firm of Zimmerman & Foxshy, presided. The conferees lasted three hours during which it was decided to appoint a committee of five to plan methods of procedure. The members of this committee have not yet been chosen. It is expected that their names will be announced next Monday.

One of the first things the committee will do will be to go to Washington to see President Wilson. The blacklisted merchants and bankers agreed that this move should be made before other steps were taken.

DEMOCRACY'S "HISTORIC PRINCIPLES"

Although many Democrats in the rank and file have changed their minds on the tariff question, it is evident that the leaders of the party, with whom legislative power rests, have changed little, if any. In his keynote speech as Chairman of the St. Louis convention, Senator Ollie M. James said:

"The Democratic party undertook to enact a new tariff law in keeping with the historic principles of the Democratic party. The Democratic party believe that the right of taxation can only exist for the purpose of raising sufficient revenues to run the Government.... We undertake the reformation of the tariff with open minds and clean hands, unowned, unpledged to any interest except that of the public welfare, and we are proud of our achievement in writing into law the present Underwood-Simmons Tariff bill."

The historic principle of the Democratic party since 1876 has been "a tariff for revenue only." As a revenue-producer the Underwood-Simmons law has been a sorry failure, and a war tax, for a country at peace, was enacted to piece out the failing revenues of that law on the plea that the war had stopped importation. In spite of the war, importations for the fiscal year ending June 30, amounted to over $2,000,000,000, about $300,000,000 greater than the record under a Republican law, while customs revenues amounted to about $200,000,000 or $110,000,000 less than those realized under the Republican law for the fiscal year 1913. Furthermore, the paragraph in the Underwood-Simmons law, providing for free sugar to take effect May 1, 1916, was hastily repealed by the Democrats in April because of the continued failure of the tariff law as a revenue producer. Adherence to the Democratic principle has resulted in direct taxation of the people, who pay out of their own pockets. Under the Republican policy the foreigner paid for sending his goods into the American market, and the price of admission went into the coffers of the Federal Treasury and paid about one-half the expenses of running the Government.

The St. Louis platform of the Democratic party, on the tariff, is in direct violation of their "historic principle." They sheer away from the "tariff for revenue only" idea, and present the competitive rate plan, aided by an anti-dumping clause. An anti-dumping clause is impossible of application unless we have a protective tariff. This plank is either a vote-catcher, or a repudiation of the "historic principle" of the party, apparently both.

BURLESON'S BLUNDERS

For some three years Postmaster General Burleson has enjoyed the unique distinction of being the most disliked politician within Democratic circles. For a time he enjoyed the reputation of political advisor of the President. To him was assigned always the task of battling recalcitrants into line.

Mr. Burleson, however, lost his usefulness as political counselor to his White House chief when he declared war on his Democratic colleagues in Congress and, interpreting legislation to suit himself, undertook to administer the Post Office Department along lines that were directly contrary to the letter of the law as laid down by the Democratic Congress.

His reorganization of the rural delivery service furnished a classic in foolhardy arbitrariness, and won for him not only the denunciation of Republicans but also that of a large majority of his own party. Mr. Burleson has only the small Southern Congressman's viewpoint, and with this he has undertaken to administer Uncle Sam's greatest business establishment. He is one of the men who "swelled, instead of grew," as Mr. Wilson so tritely put it. His reorganization of rural deliveries, announced as an economy measure, not only failed in economy but showed a record low-mark in efficiency.

More recently Mr. Burleson incurred the displeasure of Senator Bankhead and other Democrats of the Senate Post Office Committee through the activity of his subordinate, Mr. Blakslee, in writing to postmasters through the country charging that the Senate Committee had "surrendered to the railroad lobby."

Now Mr. Wilson, at least with a consistency not always manifest in other Cabinet chiefs, throws down the gauntlet to Senator Bankhead and the Committee, and declines to censure Mr. Blakslee or to eliminate him. Meantime, the Democrats of the Senate are trying to veneer over the trouble and sidetrack what promises to be a very disagreeable situation.

However, Mr. Blakslee is but a tool in the matter. He was following the policies of his chief, and Senator Bankhead, in making war on Blakslee, is really trying to censure Burleson. Many months ago conservative observers of Washington affairs predicted Mr. Burleson's impeachment. It would be not at all surprising to find another vacancy in the Wilson Cabinet.

Charles E. Hughes for President is the choice of the Republican voters—just voters, not the bosses. No act of expert hand-pickers, no combination of favorite sons "handed" Justice Hughes to the people. The favorite sons formed an alliance against him. Those who sometimes assume to do the thinking of the voters were not the promoters of his candidacy. No interests with ulterior purposes to serve clamored for his nomination. Only the plain, everyday class of voters—the men on the farms and the men in the stores, the shops and the mines, who believe in the principles of the party and cast their vote—demanded him of the party.

President Wilson's note to Carranza constitutes a vigorous arraignment of the de facto government of Mexico—and, albeit unconsciously, perhaps, a scarcely less impressive arraignment of the Wilson administration for having so long permitted the disgraceful conditions to continue.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

SUCCESS

In Marking Efforts Of Newer Generation of American Bankers—Young Men Are Being Listed on the Directorate of New Company Formed to Underwrite Big Loan.

New York, July 21—Among the names of the Directors of the newly organized American Foreign Securities Company that of Louis W. Hill caused possibly most comment. This is the corporation with a paid-up capital of $10,000,000, which was organized a few days ago exclusively for the purpose of financing the new French loan of $100,000,000, pay value. Mr. Hill's name is that of one of the youngest of the members of the Board of Directors. It was not on account of his youth, but from the fact that he, identified as he is with the conservation of the great properties his father, James J. Hill, built up, is associated with a proposition which undoubtedly would have appealed to the elder Hill.

Elder Hill Helped Loan

In fact, there are some reasons for surmising that the late James J. Hill, in the last visit which he made to New York before his death, did receive some intimation from those who were qualified to tell him respecting this French loan proposition. Mr. Hill was always warmly in favor of any American financing for the benefit of other nations. It will be one of the traditions associated with the floating of the Anglo-French loan of $500,000,000 that it was Mr. Hill's clear exposition of what that loan meant to the United States; what its true character was, and how greatly it would enable the farmers to realize quick returns from their commodities, as well as American industries, which turned a somewhat sluggish opinion in favor of this proposition.

The list of Directors of this new corporation impressively shows how skillful and how fully equal to great responsibilities and opportunities the younger generation of American financiers is. For although there are one or two members of this Board of Directors who were conspicuous in the older generation for important financial achievements, nevertheless the great body of the board is made up of those of the new generation.

New Generation Triumphant

The negotiation of this loan and the presumably successful and swift absorption of it by American investors constitute the latest of the achievement of the new generation of American financiers. Presumably the public does not realize what this transaction means, not merely for the United States of today, but for the future. Those best qualified to judge say that the negotiations themselves while in progress and the successful completion of them make it clear that no matter what emergencies or responsibilities or opportunities may appear after the European war is closed of a financing character, the younger generation of American financiers is abundantly qualified to handle any propositions of that kind.

It was an American financier, Henry P. Davidson, who, at a conference in London in the late autumn of 1914, earnestly counseled the representatives of the British Government that they summon representatives of France and of Russia to meet in conference in Paris and to take this action without paying much heed to the customary etiquette of diplomacy. And it is no small tribute to the United States that from one of her citizens there should have come the suggestion which led to the first Paris conference, and all the highly important results consequent upon it.

Steps Taken This Way

It is now known that as one of the results of this first Paris conference steps were soon taken by England and France in the direction of the American money market. Mr. Davidson, and later J. P. Morgan, both of whom are of the younger generation, after the first Paris conference, were in conference in London, and afterward with other American bankers in New York, with the representatives of England and France. The terms of this unprecedented loan, so far as the United States is concerned, were for the most part worked out by these young American bankers.

This loan was an object lesson for the United States, but it took some time for the people thoroughly to learn it. It undoubtedly prepared the way for the latest achievement of American financing, the French loan of $100,000,000. Other somewhat complicated, or at least highly technical, propositions involving foreign loans were mastered by the younger generation of American bankers, as, for instance, the recent accommodation given to Russia and the peculiarly gratifying arrangement by means of which a great credit in rules is established at Petrograd against which American bankers can draw.

Morgan Is Given Credit

The presumption is general that the loan to France of $100,000,000, as well as the organization of the American Foreign Securities Company for the purpose of financing this loan represent for the most part the plans of the proposition set forth by J. P. Morgan when he visited London in the early spring of this year.

Of course, Mr. Morgan would not claim exclusive credit for the conception of the plan as it has been worked out, but it is certain that the loan would not now have been perfected had not Mr. Morgan's views on the whole been adopted. It may be that it was he who suggested that the French Government could find a convenient way to save its sense of national pride if instead of negotiating a loan directly upon the basis of French owned foreign securities, collateral of that sort be deposited with an American institution, which, employing its bonds, could thereby issue its bonds, the proceeds of which France would obtain.

Brown Brothers Were Help

Very likely Brown Brothers greatly assisted in this negotiation. This house whose founder was the first, more than 100 years ago, to develop foreign exchange with tobacco as the American commodity and linen as the English commodity, has always maintained very high credit in London and on the continent of Europe. So high was that credit in the great panic of 1857 that the Bank of England cheerfully came to the aid of Brown Brothers, and the confidence of the bank in that house was fully justified. Since the European war began this house has been associated with some important foreign financing.

The underwriting is not exclusively a New York City proposition. Chicago is represented by Charles G. Dawes, who was the one banker of Chicago who had the courage to participate in the Anglo-French loan. Boston is represented prominently by Henry L. Higginson, the Northwest by Louis W. Hill and the great strength of Pittsburgh as a financial center is reflected by the association of A. W. Mellon with the Board of Directors. There are intimations that within a few months another large transaction of this kind may be negotiated.

SCENIC BEAUTIES OF UNITED STATES BEST ON EARTH

That the Americans who have been spending $100,000,000 a year on European tours have been paying a heavy premium for their scenic beauty, and have been going an unnecessary distance to get it, is the discovery made by the United States Department of Interior in its inventory of the wonder spots of this country. It is exposing the self-victimization of our citizens in no uncertain terms, and is preaching the sermon of home consumption of American scenery.

"This nation is richer in natural scenery of the first order than any other nation," declares Stephen T. Mather, assistant secretary to the Secretary of the Interior. "It possesses an empire of grandeur and beauty it has scarcely heard of."

The discovery of this grandeur and beauty by the motorists of this country is the sermon set forth by National Touring Week, the automobile movement that has seized our nation from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific coast. The impulse for a general outpouring of United States motorists to visit the natural beauty about them which followed the inception of the movement indicates that the country is primed for a widespread appreciation of the scenic wonder of our homeland.

When the sun rises on August 6, the date set for the official outing week of the motorists of this country, the greatest motoring tour this land has ever seen, will be under way. Thousands of automobiles will be hitting the road on a vacation tour.

Of Mrs. Chappell, of Five Years
Standing, Relieved by Cardui.

Mr. Alry, N. C.—Mrs. Sarah M. Chappell of this town, says: "I suffered for five years with womanly troubles, also stomach troubles, and my punishment was more than any one could tell."

I tried most every kind of medicine, but none did me any good.

I read one day about Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I decided to try it. I had not taken but about six bottles until I was almost cured. It did me more good than all the other medicines I had tried, put together.

My friends began asking me why I looked so well, and I told them about Cardui. Several are now taking it."

Do you, lady reader, suffer from any of the ailments due to womanly trouble, such as headache, backache, sideache, sleeplessness, and that everlastingly tired feeling?

If so, let us urge you to give Cardui a trial. We feel confident it will help you, just as it has a million other women in the past half century.

Begin taking Cardui to-day. You won't regret it. All druggists.

GREAT ISLAM UPRIISING WAS AVERTED BY BRITAIN IN EAST, ASSERTS CREWE

London, England, July 20—Replying to severe denunciations of the Mesopotamia campaign by Lord Wemyss, in introducing his motion in the House of Lords demanding an investigation, the Marquis of Crewe, Lord President of the Council, said that in the critical moments of 1914 it was imperative for Great Britain to reassert her paramount position in the Persian gulf and prevent the declaration of a holy war.

"Our presence there," he continued, "I believe saved the empire from the approach of a great disaster. We had to consider the great Moslem population of Africa also, and if we had not shown our strength Islam as a whole might have been deflected against us."

He referred to the difficulties confronting the Indian Government and said that from December, 1914, to September following there had been no less than seven separate attacks, some of a very formidable character, on India's northwest frontier, and contended that before passing final judgment on the Indian officials it would be necessary to consider the particular system of military organization there.

Lord Crewe then made a statement similar to that of Premier Asquith in the House of Commons.

Lord Cromer, who followed, admitted that the Marquis of Crewe's statement changed the aspect of the debate. He did not desire to stir the members of a rather heated controversy of a few years ago. He thought Kitchener had made a mistake in the military changes he had introduced in India, and while it would be a great exaggeration to say that the misfortune of the Mesopotamia campaign was the outcome of these changes, he could not help thinking that they largely contributed to that misfortune.

David Lloyd-George, Secretary for War, gave a long explanation of the Mesopotamian difficulties, which, he said, had arisen largely through the peculiar returns existing between the government in India and the home authorities. Thus, he stated, while Sir William R. Robertson, chief of the imperial staff, directed the military operations, the Indian Government supplied the forces and the Commander-in-chief in India was responsible for the supplies. Every requisition made on the War Office for aid for the sick and wounded and for transport had been honored, the Secretary asserted.

It is right, of course, that you vote in accordance with your convictions without interference or dictation from any person whatsoever. And on second thought, it is equally right that the other fellow should do the same.

Our esteemed friend, Poo Bah Caranza, has delicately intimated that it would please His Poo Bahship mightily if the United States turned tail and sneaked out of Mexico without Villa. No doubt!

Truth is a jewel, but if we tell too much of it we are liable to get our block knocked off.

This world is full of givers and takers, with everybody wanting to be a taker.

DELAY

Is Certain To Be Fatal—Redmond Warns Government, Relative To Irish Bill—Serious Situation Created By Failure To Make Public Text of Measure, He Believes.

London, July 20—John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, made public today a memorandum, which he sent to Premier Asquith and David Lloyd George, the Secretary of War, on Tuesday, in which he declared that the delay in making public the text of the Irish bill and the irritation caused by Lord Lansdowne's recent speech had created a very serious situation in Ireland. He adds:

"In my opinion any further delay whatever in producing and proceeding with the bill will make a settlement on the lines laid down in the terms submitted by Mr. Lloyd George quite impossible. When these terms were originally submitted to us we were strongly urged to use all possible dispatch in consulting our supporters in Ireland. It was pressed upon us that the matter was one of extreme urgency; that, from all points of view, it was vitally important that the settlement should be pushed through quickly, and we were told that not only Irish, but great Imperial, interests were at stake."

"It is now more than three weeks since we did our part and obtained the assent of our friends in Ireland in the face of very great difficulty, as the proposed terms were far from popular. Since then little or no progress has been made, and for some mysterious reason the matter, which five weeks ago was so urgent, now hangs fire."

"I, therefore, feel it my duty to urge upon the Government that further delay will be fatal, and place on record my conviction that any proposal to depart from the terms agreed upon, especially in respect to the strictly temporary provisional character of all the sections of the bill will compel us to declare that the agreement, on the faith of which we obtained the assent of our supporters in Ireland, has been departed from and is at an end."

A meeting of the Irish party has been summoned for Saturday, when the situation will be taken under consideration.

PARALYSIS PLACED IN UNDER CONTROL, SAY U. S. OFFICIALS

Washington, July 20—The United States Public Health Service today announced that danger of a further spread of infantile paralysis has passed.

The health officials said the situation in the most seriously affected territories is now entirely under control. That the epidemic which threw the country into a state of great excitement and caused renewed efforts on the part of authorities to enforce clean-up regulations would subside within a few days, was also announced by the health directors.

The complete eradication of the disease, even in New York, the principal place where it has existed, is looked for within a short time.

LINES DRAWN TIGHTER AS DEATH RATE SOARS

New York, July 20—An increase of one in the number of deaths from infantile paralysis in the last twenty-four hours, as compared with the previous twenty-four hours, was reported today. The number of cases, however, decreased.

The total of new cases reported today were 119, as compared with 142 for the previous twenty-four hours, and the number of deaths 31, as compared with 30, the previous day's record.

Federal and city authorities today increased their watchfulness at ferries and railroad stations and only those children who could show that they have not the disease and have not been exposed to it were allowed to leave the city.

IMPORTERS AT WORK

Washington, July 20—Importers representing themselves to be officers of the United States Public Health Service have been obtaining privileges and in some cases money by appearing in several cities on the pretext of making investigations in connection with the epidemic of infantile paralysis, according to information obtained at the health service's headquarters here today. As a result all officers and physicians have been ordered to wear their olive drab uniforms while on duty. There have been several cases of importers in New York City, it is stated, but the fraud is worked chiefly in small towns.

Another work has passed into history, and we love you just as much as ever.

PITY THE EUGENIC CHILD

(Detroit News)

A child is being reared in Denver under eugenic ideas. These rules have been evolved by those in charge:

Never use "baby talk."

Give him on toys.

Don't teach him to believe in Santa Claus.

Give him a cow to play with.

Diet him on cereal, with milk and a tiny bit of sugar and cow's milk.

Teach him to perfect table manners.

Frederick Fish, 18 months old, Denver's ultra-eugenic baby, received a newspaper interview. Baby Fish wore becoming pink rompers.

If the interviewer had said to Frederick, "Is on a good boy?" Frederick only would have started blankly. He has never heard "baby talk." His mother doesn't permit it.

"We use the same words in speaking to Frederick as we would in conversing with educated grownups," Mrs. Fish said.

Both eugenicists and enthusiasts are Mr. and Mrs. Fish. Eugenicist emphasizes the inheritance; a eugenicist is carefully studied out for him in advance, and Mrs. Fish was a leader of the Denver eugenicists.

This enthusiast principle hasn't anything particularly to do with the fact that a cow is Frederick's chief playmate. It just happens that the cow is Frederick's staff of life and has contributed the milk that has given Frederick rosy cheeks, a "lovely" disposition, fat legs and bright blue eyes.

The cow will gently rub its head against the baby's face. When it is lying down, lazily chewing a cud, Frederick rolls over it and otherwise enjoys himself at the cow's expense. "Cherry, the cow, is intensely jealous of the little fellow, manifesting displeasure when only one pet the child in its presence or attempts to join in the play."

When Frederick tires of the cow he must discover other means of diverting himself. He can't have the ordinary toys of children. He must show ingenuity and discover his own playthings.

"Mechanical toys keep the child from developing his imagination and constructive ability," Frederick's mother explained. "When Frederick wants to play horse I notice he takes his father's cane or uses a broomstick."

Frederick once used his mother's laundry soap bars for horse blocks. She at once bought him more soap.

"A child should never be taught a lie," Mrs. Fish said, elaborating on her statement that Frederick has never been taught to believe in Santa Claus. "Of course he will hear about Santa Claus, but if he asks me where Santa lives I shall feel it my duty to tell him the story of Santa Claus is only a myth."

Freddy has never been spanked. Corporal punishment should not be administered to a child more than 3 years old, according to Mrs. Fish's opinion. After 3 the child should be reasoned with. As she believes a child forms his habits in the first six years of his life, Mrs. Fish is teaching Frederick orderliness and manners at 18 months.

A TIP ON HEALTH

(Commerce and Finance)

In a letter to Robert Grimshaw, of the New York University, William Muldoo, who ranks as one of the foremost makers of physically broken down men, gives advice that it would be well for every man and woman, boy and girl in America to take to heart. He says:

"I was taught in early manhood not to throw my shoulders back, stick my chest out, draw my stomach in, or hold my chin down like a goat preparing to butt, but to always try and touch some imaginary thing with the crown of my head. If one tries to do that—first understand how to try and then tries—he doesn't have to pay any attention to the rest of his physical being; that effort to touch something above him, not with his forehead, but with the crown of his head, will keep every particle of his body in the position that nature intended it should be. And as a boy I was advised to frequently back up against the wall and make the back of my head, my shoulders, hips, heels, all press against the wall at the same time; and in that way get an idea of what was straight, or, in other words, how crooked I was becoming by drooping."

Both to young and old Mr. Muldoo's "hold your head up" suggestion is inspiring. Try it. The effect physically and mentally is immediate. When the head goes higher the impulse is to deeper breathing. A man finds more elasticity in his limbs. He steps out with more ease. There is more spring to his gait. He isn't a lumbering, shambling creature, but a man alive. With the elevation of the crown of the head there seems to come clearer thinking, a more buoyant feeling and a brighter outlook.

SOME ESCAPES

Had by This Man—Almost Killed in Mayville Several Years Ago.

(Portsmouth Times)

What would you do if you happened to be seated in a restaurant some evening and would casually glance into a mirror and find that a man with whom you were acquainted had a leveled pistol within an inch of your head? Would you scream for help or just jerk your head to one side in time to allow a bullet to flatten itself against the opposite wall? Well, Virgil Fowler, the Chillicothe street camera man, choose the latter.

At the time Mr. Fowler was at Oskaloosa, Iowa. The fellow who fired the shot happened to be going with the same girl that Mr. Fowler called upon frequently.

This is only one of several experiences he had had at different times.

One day while assisting an electrical engineer in one of the large hospitals at Washington, D. C., he barely escaped death while inspecting an elevator shaft. The engineer was looking down the shaft and Mr. Fowler was holding to his hand. For some reason, he moved out of the opening, just as the elevator brushed past. The edge of the car caught the engineer on the back of the neck and clipped his head off, leaving the nerveless body clinging by one hand to him.

Another time, while living at Salem, Va., he was hanged by the ears. He was a boy then and happened to be running from a flight of steps, which led to a basement. A pair of sliding doors closed upon him, catching his ears upon some pegs that protruded from the sides, and his body was carried off the steps by the inertia. A companion rescued him.

While at Mayville, Ky., several years ago he was riding on one of the street cars and in attempting to alight before the car stopped, he lost his balance and fell to the street. His head was so close to the moving wheels that part of his hair was crushed off.

Over at the Selby Shoe Company several years ago, he fell through an elevator shaft and fractured his skull in three places. He was unconscious for five days.

Down on Second street, in a store now occupied by Charles Barlow, plumber, he was conducting some experiments a few years ago with some chemicals. There was a spontaneous explosion, which partially demolished the structure and threw him clear out of the room in which he was sitting. He escaped with several painful burns.

While working in a soap factory at Salem, Va., he accidentally swallowed some caustic potash for sugar and was in the throes of the deadly poison when discovered. An antidote was administered and he recovered.

At Bethel, Ky., he was accidentally pushed off a platform and alighted upon a board containing several upturned twenty-penny nails.

Despite the many thrilling encounters Mr. Fowler retains his desire to experiment and most anyone one can visit his store and find some new apparatus that will materially assist him in his photographic work.

THREE PLANTERS INVENTED

(American Contractor)

A machine which plants from 10,000 to 15,000 forest tree seedlings a day is being used at the Letchworth Park forest and arboretum, in Wyoming County, N. Y., according to officials of the forest service who are acting as advisers in the work. Previously the planting has been done by hand at the rate of 1,200 to 1,500 trees each day per man.

The machine was designed to set out cabbage and tomato plants, but works equally well with trees. It is about the size of an ordinary mowing machine and is operated by three men and two horses. One man drives the team while the other two handle the seedlings. The machine makes a furrow in which the trees are set at any desired distance, and an automatic device indicates where they should be dropped. Two metal-tired wheels push and roll the dirt firmly down around the roots. This is a very desirable feature, it is said, because the trees are apt to die if this is not well done. Two attachments make it possible to place water and fertilizer at the roots of each seedling. Another attachment marks the line on which the next row of trees is to be planted.

No cost figures are available yet, but officials say that the cost will be much less than when the planting is done by hand. It is stated that the machine can be used on any land which has been cleared and is not too rough to plow and barrow.

A few of our favorite sons, however, appear to have unloaded the bulk of their favorite.

The gauge marks 16.2 this morning and falling. The river is not going down as it was expected to, but as there has been quite a few rains in the valley during the past week it will probably go back very slowly. The contractors can now begin pumping out the cofferdam as the river has gone down enough to permit this.

There will be no boats pass up or down the river today but the Green Island will pass up the river late tonight for Pomeroy. The Courier will pass down tomorrow for Cincinnati.

The high river has done little or no damage during its little rampage except to three contractors at the dam. They were warned in time however and will lose nothing but the time which will amount to about ten days.

You can rely on what he tells you.

Henry Gallenstein, blacksmith, Poplar St., Maysville, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the best of kidney medicines. I have used different kinds and no other has ever equalled this one. When my kidneys were out of order and I had pain in my back, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They stopped the pains and strengthened my kidneys. The cure has been permanent."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Gallenstein had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
